[For the Saturday Evening Post.]
Messrs. Editors,
The following beautiful and pathetic lines are from the pen of MOORE, the Irish bard, and were written on the betrothed wife of the unfortunate and patriotic Emmet: she died the victim of a broken heart.—They are copied from No. 11. of the Sketch Book; by republishing them in your interesting Journal you will confer an obligation on yours, &c.
BOSTON BARD.

She is far from the land where her young heroes sleep
And lovers around her are sighing;
But coldly she turns from their gaze, and weeps, For her heart in his grave is lying.
She sings the wild song of her dear native plains, Every note which she loved awaking—Al! little they think, who delight in her strains, How the heart of the minstrel is breaking.
He had lived for his love—for his country he died.
They were all that to life had entwined him—Nor soon shall the tears of his country be dried, Nor long will his love stay behind him!
Oh! make her a grave where the sunbeams rest,
When they promise a glorious morrow; They'll shine o'er her sleep, like a smile from the west,
From her own loved island of sorrow!

KEEPING OF THE SABBATH.
A piece published in the Boston Patriot, of the propriety of keeping the Sabbath, has been republished in the Democratic Press, which, by the temperate manner in which the subject is treated, has excited considerable attention. The writer's aim appears to have been to convince his readers that the keeping of one day in seven, an Sabbath, is not commanded under the Christian dispensation; and that, if the keeping of a day is enjoined upon us by laws given to the Jews under the old dispensation, it is manifestly the last day of the week and not the first; by the author he quotes, to prove his assertions, it is evident that the primitive Christians, for 150 years after our Saviour's crucifixion, were not in the practice of keeping the Jewish Sabbath, or any particular day in eu of it, and that no regulation was made in respect to it till Anno Domini 301 in the reign of Constantine.
The writer, throughout his whole piece, considers the law requiring the observance of one day entirely in a religious point of view, and argues with much force against the propriety of one set of believers requiring others to observe a day which they do not feel themselves conscientiously bound to observe. However just his reasoning may be on that point, I consider that it does not at all apply to the abstaining from labour on the first day of the week, in his country, which ought to be considered in no other light than a civil regulation to enable all the community to have a day of rest; that the poor, as well as the rich, may be at liberty to worship their Creator in the way dictated by their own consciences; and also, that the dumb animal, the horse and the ox, given to man by the bounty of his Creator, should have the proper share of the enjoyments of life I believe there is no law in existence in its state which obliges an individual to perform any act of worship on that day; and surely every community may agree, (without any charge of tyranny on its members that one day in seven shall be a day of rest. There is, I think, a manifest pro-priet in every community's obliging those who are servants and labourers to allow them stated times for rest, and not leave it entirely to their interest or caprice.— Furthermore, let our several beliefs be what they may, as long as the regulation is binding upon all, there is but little reason for any to complain; and those particular who believe that it is incumbent on man to live as that he may never fear to die will never have cause to say their times of retirement from the hurry and business of life are made too frequent by the keeping of the first day of the week as a day of rest.

GENERAL PEPPE.
The father of Tristram Shandy would never have placed much reliance upon the character and conduct of a man with such a name. We find under date of June 6th, from Naples, the following article:—"The traitor Peppe having charged his officers with cowardice when about to meet the Austrians, they have published a collective reply to him, in which they state he rode off from the field, saying he would personally inform himself what had become of a reserve corps of artillery, and that he never returned."

The following anecdote, which is extracted from a British Magazine, was brought to recollection by the exhumation of the bones of Andre, and well deserves to be known to the American people: Lord Surry, now Duke of Norfolk, rising once to speak in the House of Commons, observed General Arnold, the American deserted, in the gallery, and sat down with great precipitation, saying, "but I'll not speak while that man, (pointing to him,) is in the house."

[For the Saturday Evening Post.]
Late Marine Intelligence.
Extracted from the Journal of His Most Marine Majesty, Sea Serpent, the First, Grand Surveyor of Nahant Beach, Cape Cod, &c. &c. &c.
Took my departure 21st inst. from the waters of Nahant, steering direct for Cape Cod; breakfasted on a shoal of fine mack-arel, a few dog fish, two small shark, half bushel of clams, shells and all, and a tolerable sized halibut; felt a little gripping in the bowels—supposed it to arise from the sharp edges of the clam shells, or the extreme roughness of the skin of the dog fish; swallowed about a barrel of sand and salt water, and felt relieved.—Saw a schooner just ahead of me—raised myself seven feet out of water, and peeped in at her cabin windows; captain and mate busily employed in masticating fat pork, previously dipped in molasses; discovered me, and ran for a harpoon; thought it prudent to retire, so passing under her keel, was soon out of danger.—Mem. to take good care how I look into a yankee vessel's cabin windows again.—Ate a luncheon of porpoises and herring, and proceeded on; found a quadrant on the bottom, but all the glasses being out, and no optician, or mathematical instrument maker handy, threw it away again; concluded I would have a young whale for dinner; discovered a number of them about five miles distant, and made for them; found they were holding a grand council of war, determining the most safe manner of attacking and conquering me; dispersed the assembly by flogging them with my tail, and eating the smallest for my dinner; took a nap in the hold of a sunken wreck—slept undisurbed, except when annoyed by the crabs and ee's which occasionally picked out the food from between my teeth, and sometimes bit my tongue; waked much refreshed, stretched myself, and kept on my way.—Partly determined to lay off New York, and shew myself to Dr. M. but remembering the Doctor's propensity to look into every thing strange, felt afraid he might be curious enough to wish to have a look at my intestines, to which I have always indulged a great antipathy, I concluded to keep clear of Sandy Hook, and make for the Capes of Delaware.—I continued to fare pretty much as usual, except whale food, having frightened the whole posse away when I broke up their assembly; I arrived off Cape May yesterday afternoon, August 24th, where I intend remaining during the ensuing week, after which I shall take a trip up the Delaware, for the purpose of offering my assistance in planning and building a bridge from Mud Island to Trenton in the State of New Jersey, provided I am allowed the shad that may frequent these waters, for three fishing seasons, as a compensation for my services.—I have also another object in view in visiting Philadelphia, viz. to do away the disbelief existing among its citizens of my existence, which disbelief has been somewhat prejudicial to the interests of my firm and faithful friends, the editors and publishers of many yankee journals.

We give the following as an unprecedented instance of the powerful operation of danger on the mind, even though labouring under the immediate effects of a sudden and critical catastrophe: At Cullif's coal pits in Chesterfield, about 14 miles from Richmond, the workmen had sunk a shaft near 200 feet deep.
At the bottom of it, they were blowing rock. An Irishman was alone, engaged in this operation, he had charged with powder, fixed the match, and lighted it, before he gave the signal to those above to haul him up. It is, of course, necessary on these occasions for those at the winlass to draw the person up as rapidly as possible, to avoid the effects of the explosion. The Irishman had been drawn from thirty to fifty feet in the air, when the rope broke, and he was precipitated with all his force to the bottom of the shaft. Nearly stunned by so violent a fall, this man had still presence of mind enough to recollect the imminent danger he ran of being blown to atoms by the powder; the match was yet burning, in a moment more it might have been too late—yet he immediately clapped his hand on the ignited match, and extinguished it.

Yellow Fever at Fayetteville, (N. C.)
The Commissioners of the town deem it their duty to state to the public, that within the present week, six persons have died with a fever, bearing strong resemblance to the Yellow Fever—that a number of persons are at present confined, with the same disorder, and that one or two only that have been attacked, have as yet recovered. It has not been ascertained, whether this disease was enterered among ourselves, or imported from the Havana. Investigation is on foot and the result will be made known. In laying these facts before the public, it is done as much to prevent exaggeration, as to state them precisely as they exist.
The change in the weather is highly favourable.
By order,
THOS. CALLENDER, Town Clerk.
Wilmeton, August 11, 1821.

[Since the above, we learn, that the fever had nearly abated, and the alarm was at an end. The cases were considered merely bilious, brought on by excessive rains and heat.]

American Academy of Languages and Belles Lettres.
At a quarterly meeting, 4th of June, 1821, City Hall, in the city of New York.
Resolved, That a premium of two hundred dollars and a gold medal, be given to the author of an American citizen, who within two years shall produce to the acceptance of the exam-committee of this institution, a small volume original reading lessons, for common schools, which shall best combine useful instruction and principles, with attractive elegance and purity of style, calculated for children from 8 to ten years and adapted to the faculties of the human mind that age.

HOPE FOR SAILORS.
Pursuant to an arrangement between the Committee of the Port of New York, and the City and Com. Stewart, Divine services were attended on board the United States Ship, the Franklin, now lying opposite the Battery.
Several clergymen and a number of sailors were present, who had the satisfaction of witnessing a scene which they will never easily forget. Between seven and eight hundred persons being assembled on the deck of this noble ship, the Rev. Dr. Spanghorne, of New York, addressed the Throne of Grace, at which the venerable apostle of the Sea, the Rev. Mr. Eastburn, of Philadelphia, and the Rev. Mr. Eastburn, of Philadelphia, and delivered a short but most appropriate and fervent discourse. The Rev. Dr. Spanghorne, of Philadelphia, closed the exercises by Prayer and Benediction. The utmost decorum, and at intervals, the most touching solemnity prevailed throughout the exercises. Much is due to the cheerfulness with which the overtire of the Committee was received by Commodore Stewart, as well as to the promptness and civility of Lieutenant Hunter, and all the ship's officers, for the regularity and accommodations of the meeting.

THE OHIO AND MISSISSIPPI RIVERS.
STEAM BOATS.—We have before us, say the Richmond Compiler, a list of the steam boats which plied up and down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, with the tonnage, &c. on the 18th January last. They are alphabetically arranged. Their number and tonnage are really astonishing. There are not less than 72 employed. The Telford is 408 tons; the Tennessee 416; the Mahattan 427; the Columbus 450—but the United States, Capt. Hart, is of the last shipping size of 646 tons!—There is one steam boat on Lake Ponchartrain; one on Plaquemine and lake; and one on the Mobile Bay.—There are several more boats on the stocks; and the number for the transportation of passengers and cargoes is rapidly increasing as will outstrip any moderate calculation. The river is occasionally animated by the smoking bow-wheels, and passing each other. In many stretches several boats are sometimes visible; and along the Levee at New Orleans, twenty steam boats or more are sometimes to be seen together. The people of the Mississippi are, in the most conspicuous part of the Orleans.

The case of Commodore Barron.
The following is from the Norfolk Herald of Monday last:
"If there are considerations which induce the Navy Department to withhold its publications (the publication of the report of the Court of Enquiry in the case of Commodore Barron) it would certainly be highly indiscreet and indecorous in an officer of Commodore Barron's rank to traverse the views of his superior; but particularly when, as we understand, he has had no information of the effect it has produced in the quarter, or of the further views of the Government since this singular document was made. Nor do we deem the publication of the opinion material to the cause of truth.
We certainly should not, if it were at our option, lay it before the public; and if we were demanded of us to do so, as a matter of right, we should perform the duty with great reluctance. Not that we should leave it which is inferred that we consider its publication of capable of giving an unfavorable turn to public opinion in respect to Commodore Barron, but we are, as every real friend to the Navy must be, in this instance, influenced by considerations of paramount importance. We believe it is unnecessary for us to be more explicit."

GOOD HUMOUR.
CRITICISM.—Our friend Mr. Lang, in his valuable Gazette of this morning, in mentioning the delightful showers of rain, says sunday, observes—"our streets are as clean as a whistle, and the weather as pleasant ever it is in dog days." Now, although our friends are not yankees by birth, yet having been sided in the land of notions for a little, and we are somewhat acquainted with their Yankee dialect; and we must therefore object to the phrase, "clean as a whistle," and not being what it was evidently intended to be—a legitimate Yankeeism. Had Mr. Lang written the word slick instead of clean, he would have forever defied the assault of criticism. To show that we are not acquainted without authority in this instance, we give a stanza of poetry, from a standard author, which proves incontestably that Lang ought to have written "slick as a whistle." The expression would have been equally true, and more poetic.
Without one speck or blemish seen—Nice as a pink, and as a penny clean—
Slick as a whistle—whiter far than white—Cute as a pin, and as a dollar bright.
This stanza is evidently the root of the expression for which we are contending.
"Slick as a whistle" must consequently be right. Should any person, however, be of opinion that either "Nice as a pin," or "Cute as a pin," may be tolerated, let us both modes of expression are adopted in the above quotation.—[N. Y. Com. Advocate.]

PIRACY.

Extract from the Log Book of the brig Frances, Ja... cob Drummond, master, from St. Jago de Cuba, ... arrived at New York, August 18. ... On the 1st of June, we saw a small sail stand... ing from under the land. At 5 P. M. she was ... sweeping towards us, apparently full of men— ... judging her to be a piratical vessel, kept away ... W. S. W. and made all sail to escape. At dark ... the chase gaining fast upon us, was nearly ast... ish and commenced firing. We continued our course ... until the shot fell thick around us. At 9 P. M. ... we were boarded, and the boat returned full of ... armed people, who immediately jumped on deck, ... armed with blunderbusses, cutlasses and pistols, ... took possession of the brig, and drove all hands ... below, cutting and maiming every one within their ... reach. They then proceeded to put the brig about ... and stood in for the land; in doing which, the ... mate and one man were called up from below to ... assist in working her, they standing over us with ... cutlasses, and uttering the most horrid imprecations. ... Two men, armed, now went down into the ... cabin, where captain Drummond and a passenger ... were confined, and presenting pistols to their ... breasts, demanded an immediate deliverance of all ... their money, watches and apparel on board, on ... pain of immediate death, and accompanied the ... threat with severe strokes of the sabre, and a ... menace that in the event of anything being found ... concealed, a general massacre should take place. ... Deeming it expedient for the safety of our lives, ... and the preservation of the vessel and cargo, we ... delivered up every thing demanded, consisting of ... four trunks, and one chest, containing wearing ap... parel, &c. to the value of $1000; cash in dollars, ... doubloons, and guineas, $800; 4 valuable gold ... and silver watches, with chains, seals, &c. $500; ... also, writing desk, and its contents, a spy glass, ... double barreled gun, three pistols, a sword, all ... the sea clothing, beds and bedding, one compass, ... two studding sails, one complete suit of colored ... stock wines, cabin furniture, and cooking utensils, ... leaving us nothing but the clothes on our backs. ... At 11, P. M. left us, and made off for the land ... in a state of considerable intoxication, with a threat ... of again returning to massacre every soul, and this ... we considered highly probable. We immediately ... took possession of the brig again, tacked, and ... standing off, saw them no more.

THE OLIO.

"Variety's the very spice of life, That gives it all its flavour."

TO A YOUNG LADY.

"You're married?"—True; and where's the harm?
Must I no more on others gaze?
For me shall beauty own no charm—
No more demand the minstrel's lays?

When pressing to the glass my lip, Shall I not drink to more than one?
Shall I not—when the wine I sip—Pledge only her whose heart is won?

Both to the conquered and the free I'll drink—and pledge—and drink again:
The eye that throws its light on me,
Shall never dart its beams in vain.

Yet, there is one whom most I prize—Above all others love—adore;
Bound to my soul by holiest ties,
'Till life, its joys and pains are o'er.

The Soldier's Grave.

On the spot where he fought, on the crimson'd plain Where the war-hound triumphantly raged, Surrounded by foemen and friends who were slain, When warrior with warrior engaged;
When he grappled foe in the terrible strife,
And the thunder of battle resounded;
When shuddering groans of departing life Were heard with the screams of the wounded;

He fell—and he sleeps on the field of his fame,
From his home, and his kindred afar;
No hand closed his eyes, no stone tells his name,
On the deeds of this victim of war;
The bones of the dead, mark the spot where he lies,
Where he fell, where he died, and reposes;
The rank grass has wave a green shroud o'er The grave

And the corse of the soldier encloses.

SPELLING.

One who had met with some disaster,
Which forced him to become school-master, Taught children how to spell by rule:
And oft invited parents in,
To see their children learning win—
A mother called to see her boy,
Her solace, comfort and her joy,
And hear him spell.—The master said,
"Stand up, good boy; hold up your head;
"Hold up your book, so you can see—
"Spell on."—The boy whines, "B, E, D." "Well," says the master, "very well—
"But what do these three letters spell?" Says boy, "I don't know, and can't tell."
"What do you sleep upon, you cur?"
"I always sleep on sheep skin, sir."

Welsh's Ale.

"NUNC TEMPORE EST ABUNDUM."
The warrior may boast of the battles he's fought,
Of the blood that has crimsoned the plain;
Of the deeds that his valor and strong arm hath wrought,

And the victims his sabre hath slain;
I envy no wreath that encircles his brow, Though its hue and its fragrance ne'er fail, Provided you place me where full bumpers flow Of Welsh's pure—unrivalled Ale.

The lordling may sip of his sparkling Champagne,
Of his Claret, Madeira, and Port; Cognac he may quaff till he muddles his brain,
And becomes of his fellow the sport;
I'll still keep aloof from such drinking as this,
How rarely soe'er blow the gale,

For I've found that there's only true comfort and bliss

In quaffing of Welsh's pure Ale.

Should the baillif e'er enter my snug little cot,
With a dun from a creditor hard,
From my chair and my table I'll move not a jot, Nor cause e'er a door to be barred;

For I'll bid him sit down, and he cannot deny,
And then I will tell him a tale,
And moisten his lips till he closes each eye,
With bumpers of Welsh's best Ale.

When Death, on the pale horse, shall knock at my door,

To pay him the debt that I owe,
When my days shall be numbered, whatever the score,

In this valley of sorrow below;
When my spirit departs to its mansion on high,
And I'm bidden to clasp up each sail,
It shall not be said that my timbers were dry,
For I'll soak them in Welsh's best Ale.

EPITAPH.

Beneath this smooth stone, by the bone of his bone, Sleeps Master John Gill;
By lies when alive, this attorney did thrive,
And now that he's dead he still lies.

Counsellor Crips being on a party at Casse Martyr, the stat of the earl of Shannon, in Ireland, one of the party who was a physician, strolled out before dinner into the church-yard. Dinner being served up, and the doctor not returned, some of the company were expressing their surprise where he could be gone to. "Oh, (says the Counsellor), he is but just stepped out to pay a visit to some of his old patients."

A company happening to have a dispute concerning the age of lord Chesterfield, an Irish gentleman observed he must be older than they supposed, for, added he, his lordship must have been upwards of one and twenty when he signed the bond which was forged by Doctor Dodd. All present assented to it.

Judge Robinson, who was as conspicuous for his professional talent, as he was for an honest bluntness, being on a circuit once, saw a military man take up a place in the box allotted for the petit jury; upon which he called out to the sheriff's officers to turn that soldier out of the box. "My Lord, (said the officer) I am no soldier."
"What are you then?" said the judge—
"My Lord, I am an officer." "An officer!" said then, bailiff, turn that officer out, who says he is not a soldier."

Long and short tails.—A person asked a farmer what he must give him to take his horses to grass—"Why," said the farmer, "long tailed horses four shillings, and bob tailed six per week." The person wondered at the difference of the charge, which the farmer, at his desire, explained—the reason is this: "I am weather, the long tailed horses are to busy in switching the flies that they have not time to eat as much as the others; but the bob tails have no thing else to do."

A person calling at a store in which there was an Hibernian employed as an attendant, wished to purchase a gallon of molasses, which the attendant drew in a gallon measure, and with the exception of about half a pint, poured it into a jug that was brought for that purpose; the person observing that there was some considerable left in the measure, took it up for the purpose of draining the molasses out, when to his surprise, the measure was clenched by the Hibernian, saying, "Avast—avast, honey—sure there was that much in the measure when I drew your molasses."

Several years ago, at a treaty held with some Indian tribes at Vincennes, in Indiana, at which the celebrated Tecumseh was present, Gen. Harrison acted as one of the commissioners on the part of our government. A bower had been erected in a field adjoining the town for the meetings of the parties. Before the Council was opened, Gen. Harrison handed several chairs to the American officers who were present before he offered one to Tecumseh. On handing one to him, the haughty warrior thrust it aside; and surveying those around him with a mingled expression of pride and contempt, threw himself in a reclining posure on the ground. Gen. Harrison endeavored to soothe him, and through the interpreter asked whether he intended to offend his Great Father. "My father," said the indignant chief, "the Sun is my Father, and the earth is my Mother, and I will repose myself on her bosom."

On the 10th of August, 1737, the General Court of Massachusetts met at Salisbury, and that of New Hampshire at Hampton Falls, that they might both be near the Court of Commissioners then in session for the purpose of settling the boundary line between the two provinces. The members of the Court met at Boston, and proceeded to Salisbury in a body. The Governor, Mr. Belcher, who was governor of both provinces, rode in state, attended by a troop of horse. On that occasion the following pasquinade was written:

Dear Paddy, you ne'er did behold such a sight As yesterday morning was seen before night.
You in all your born days saw, nor I didn't neither,
So many fine horses and men ride together.
At the head, the lower horse trotted two in a row, Then all the higher horse pranced after the low;
Then the Governor's coach galloped on like the wind,
And the last that came foremost were troopers behind;

But I fear it means no good to your neck or mine,
For they say 'tis to fix a right place for the line."

A Device for lawyers.—It is well known that certain buildings in London formerly occupied by the Knights Templars, have been for two or three centuries past converted into chambers and offices for lawyers.
The seal of the old Templars was a representation of two men riding on a horse, a device which they owe to two of the earliest knights of their order. When the lawyers took possession of these seats of arms and chivalry, the members of the Inner Temple adopted the seal of their predecessors; but for some reason which is not well explained, changed the two men into a pair of wings, thus converting the good steed of the Knights into a Pegasus—perhaps to denote the aspiring temper of the profession. It has been recently suggested, that a return to the old seal of the Templars would be peculiarly proper, as no device could be more appropriate to the present crowded state of the Profession, than that of two riding on one horse!

Swiftness of men.—Men who are exercised in running outstrip horses, or, at least, hold their speed for a longer continuance.
In a journey, too, a man will walk down a horse; and after they have both continued to proceed for several days, the horse will be quite tired, and the man as fresh as in the beginning. The king's messengers of Ispahan, who are runners by profession, go 108 miles in 14 hours. Hottentots outstrip lions in the chase, and savages who hunt the elk, tire down and take it; they are said to have performed a journey of three thousand six hundred miles in less than six weeks.

Hume commenced a poetical effusion thus:
God did at first make man upright—but "HE,"
To which another poet added:
Would surely have continued so—but "SHE."

On the Statue of the King of England, on the top of the spire of Bloomsbury Church:—

When Harry the English left the Pope in the lurch, His subjects all styled him the head of the Church;
But George's good subjects, the Bloomsbury people,
Instead of the church, made him head of the steeple.

SUERET.—It is not generally known that this beverage, so often mentioned with praise in Arabic poetry, is neither more nor less than a de-coction of oatmeal and sugar, seasoned when cold with rosewater.

CHAMPAGNE.—This celebrated wine is indebted for its characteristic properties to the presence of carbonic acid. It produces rapid intoxication, in consequence of the alcohol, which is suspended in, or combined with this gas, being thus applied in a sudden and very divided state to a larger extent of nervous surface—for the same reason, its effects are as transitory as they are sudden.

COFFEE.—Substitutes for this useful berry have grown so much into use on the continent, that the importation of that article into Europe is reduced from seventy millions of pounds annually to below thirty millions.

NEW METAL, called Argent Millium.—It has been a great desideratum with watchmakers, plate-workers, &c. to procure new metal resembling gold, and possessing some of its best qualities. Mr. Mill has been induced to apply himself to this particular object. After long trial and perseverance, he discovered a metal which he calls Argent Millium, and which he has no doubt will answer most of the purposes of gold, without being subject to the numerous imperfections of petit-or pinchbeck, &c. In colour it resembles 60s. gold, and is nearly as heavy in specific gravity as jewellers' gold. It is malleable, and has the invaluable property of not easily tarnishing, to which the metals just mentioned, and all other imitations of gold, are so particularly liable. It is very hard and sonorous, and requires care in the working.
The price of it being from 4s. to 4s. 6d. an ounce, will not be an obstacle to its general use, and he has no hesitation in saying, that, for beauty, there is not any metal that exceeds it, as it is susceptible of an exquisite polish.

RUBIES.—These are the rarest, and have hitherto been the dearest, of all the artificial stones.
M. Douat Wieland, a jeweller of Paris, has discovered a method of making, with the greatest ease, excellent imitations, by fusing five ounces of strass and one groce of oxide of manganese.

COMETS.—It is now ascertained that one and the same comet returns to our system, in 1786, 1795, 1801, 1805, and 1813-19. It appears that it never ranges beyond the orbit of Jupiter. Its short period of little more than 8½ years, and its greater distance from the sun, which is not much greater than twice that of the earth, connect it in a particular manner with that part of the system in which we are placed;—of course, it crosses the orbit of the earth more than sixty times in the course of a century. According to the calculations of Mr. Olbers, of Bremen, after a lapse of 33,000 years, a Comet will approach to the earth in the same proximity as the moon; after 4,000,000 years it will approach to the distance of 7,700 geographic miles;—and then, if its attraction equals that of the earth, the waters of the ocean will be elevated 13,000 feet and cause a second deluge.— After 220,000,000 years it will clash with the earth.

EXTRAORDINARY PRODUCTION.—There grew last year in the garden of Mr. Johnson, at Sunbury, a stalk of wheat in the hollow of an apple tree, five feet from the ground, which produced, without care, or scarce any notice, 33 ears, and 1092 grains of wheat, besides what was destroyed by birds and insects. The straw is still to be seen in the hollow, where it grew all affixed to one root, and the produce growing upon and around it.

SEA WATER.—The use of many who frequent sea-bathing places, of descending to the beach, and the resawallowing, periodically, copious draughts of sea water, is extremely detrimental to health, from the excessive and permanent irritation of the stomach and bowels, produced by this potion, in its state of mechanical mixture with selenite, floating particles of algae and fuci, and its integral combination of muriate of soda.

THE AMERICAN UNION.

An Indian Sachem, finding his life drawing to a close, called his children around him, and, holding out a bundle of rods bound firmly together, told his sons to break them. Each tried in his turn, but was unable. He then separated them, and broke each rod himself with ease. "Thus," (said he,) will it be with you, my children.
In union you will find safety; divided, your enemies will easily overpower you.— These rods, firmly united, the efforts of strong men could not break; but when separated, a feeble old man could destroy them.

GAMBLING.

There is no evil which calls more imperiously upon the interference of the public authorities than gambling houses. This evil has increased to such an extent that it is attended with the most demoralizing consequences. Here men resort, at first, for pleasure, as a relaxation from business, but led on as it were by an ignis fatuus, they soon immerse their families in distress and themselves in ruin. How often has the happiness of families been destroyed, and the brightest prospects in life foiled!
At the midnight hour, when perhaps he is in those haunts where vice and immorality centre, his companion, with anxious hopes, waits for his return; but she waits in vain.
At length he comes with a mind soured by misfortune and impaired by intemperance.
Domestic happiness here no longer finds a residence; for all her joys are fled. Gambling houses are not only of private but of public injury. Many a man who has been the pillar of the state, and been employed in objects of public utility has here lost his character and ended his usefulness. On the virtue of our people depends the duration of our government.

THE LOAD STONE.—The idea of M. Ampere, that load stones are an assemblage of electrical currents, led him to conceive the plan of imitating their action by spiral conductors, and after some failures he succeeded. Thus all the mystery of the load stone is solved, and instead of an innate property vis generica, the dolitary appears to be a mere mechanical effect of certain mundane circulations, not of electricity however, but of the media, which themselves produce the phenomena called the electric. Dr. Wollaston has been writing on the same subject, but unable to divest himself of the prejudices of education and habit, seeks to involve M. Ampere's simple theory in some modifications of repulsion and attraction.

THE METHODISTS.

This religious sect is said, in a late publication to amount in England to nearly one million of persons, although during the year 1820 they had diminished about six thousand. It stated that the number of members is exactly ascertained by each paying one penny a week to support their preachers, which amounts to 112,632 sterling per annum, that the collections for educating the sons of the priests, and for various other purposes, make the whole taxes levied annually upon each member amount to ten shillings, making a total of five hundred thousand pounds sterling, or about two million three hundred thousand dollars, which is sufficient to pay 10,000 preachers at fifty pounds sterling a year each, besides all that they receive in the way of food, lodgings, and other items that go towards maintaining them in ease and plenty. These facts speak volumes. It is, however, but just to say, that no religious sect has done more to reform the vices of the lower orders than the methodists.

THE HARVEST.—The accounts from almost every county in New York state, represent the crops of wheat, barley, oats, rye, flax, and hay, to have been most abundant, and surpassing those of last year. The long continuance of dry weather appears to have greatly injured the corn, buckwheat and potatoes, the crops of which, it is believed, will turn out in several places very light, unless a favorable change soon takes place. The drought, however, is confined to a few districts. The appearance is much the same in Pennsylvania; while in both Carolina great complaints are making of their cotton and corn crops having been greatly injured by incessant rains, though it is admitted, "that upon the whole there will be a sufficiency to supply every want."

The celebrated cause of the Seneca Indian arraigned for the murder of his squaw, which involves the question of the jurisdiction of our courts over the Indian tribes, was argued on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, before the Supreme Court—Messrs. Talcott, Attorney General, and J. C. Spencer, for the prosecution, and Mr.
Oakley for the prisoner. The points in the case, and a summary of the arguments of the counsel are given in the Albany Argus. Many spectators were attracted by the novelty of the cause, and the appearance of the savage, who was at the bar in full costume, and painted after the fashion of his tribe. He was admitted to bail until the decision of the court be given.

BEAUX WANTED!—We are very much surprised and concerned to learn, that the ladies at Long Branch, who form a concentration of beauty and fashion, collected from New York, Philadelphia, and New Jersey, are almost destitute of beaux! In fact, so scarce are the gentlemen, it is said, that unless a reinforcement arrives timely, the ladies are to have the privilege of choosing their partners by lot, at the balls in the ensuing week! We are further informed, by the steam boat Franklin, that "Old Batchelors pass current for young men, and scurvy coin!"

The following is a statement of the number of persons composing a family in the township of Green, Hamilton county, state of Ohio:

Michael Isgrig and Barbara his wife,	2
Children 17, married 14,	31
Grand-children 96, married 7,	103
Great grand-children,	22
	158

The above 158 persons are descendants from one marriage. Mr. Isgrig is still a remarkably active man for his years.

Rome, Oneida County, N.Y. Common Pleas, 1820.
A. B. vs. C. D.—This was an action brought by the plaintiff to recover damages occasioned by the defendant's driving grasshoppers from his to his neighbor's field. The verdict of the jury was $17 in favor of the plaintiff.

A MOUSE HUNG!
A few days ago, (says the Nantucket Inquirer,) a mouse was discovered upon the floor of a store in this town, apparently trying to extricate himself from something unperceived. Upon examining it more closely, it was found that a spider about the size of a large pea, had wound his web around the body of the mouse, and was actually drawing him up to the wall. The strength of the mouse was almost exhausted, when a cat, which happened to pass, took the prize and made off.

The London Monthly Magazine says, the fee of a Physician in Spain, is two pence from the tradesmen, ten pence from the man of fashion, and nothing from the poor.

TO HOUSEWIVES.

Pickling.—Keeping pickles or preserves in common earthen or potter's ware, is said to be dangerous to health, on account of such vessels being glazed with lead of a poisonous nature, which all acids will corrode or dissolve. The smaller the vessel for pickling, the better, because every time a jar is opened, the air gets in, and materially injures its contents.

To increase the strength of vinegar.—Bot-two quarts of good vinegar till it evaporates to one. Put it in a vessel, and set it in the sun for a week; then to one part add six of weak or indifferent vinegar, and it will make it strong and agreeable.

Spots of ink on linen.—Lemon juice is sometimes used to take ink spots from linen, but a hole generally appears where the lemon juice is applied.

The best and safest method is to take a mould candle, the tallow of which is commonly of the finest kind, melt it, dip the spotted part into the melted tallow, then put it to the wash, and it will become white, and no hole will appear.
